DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

1. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

a. Claim 7 recites a plurality of patentably distinct artificial graft materials: specifically comprising fibrin, collagen, trunk cell, stem cell, umbilical cell, pericyte, endothelium, epithelium, embryo, clone, body fluid composition, or a combination thereof. The graft materials are patentably distinct for example; the stem cells recited in this group, represent a class of cells that express a precise array of molecular signals that control the specific developmental pathway of these cells. The trunk cell, umbilical cell, pericyte cells are distinct since they represent a distinct set of tissue types that are not disclosed as being capable of use together. The embryo included in this group is a multicellular organism, and is structurally and chemically distinct from all other members of the claimed genus. Furthermore, the fibrin, collagen, and the body fluid composition members of this group are drawn to non-cellular components and are structurally and chemically distinct from each other, and distinct from the other members of the claimed genus. The search for one species of this group is not coextensive with any other member of the claimed group.

b. Claim 8 also recites a plurality of components that are comprised within the claimed artificial graft. The variety of components recited in claim 8 are chemically and structurally distinct compounds, wherein the search of each component requires a separate and non-coextensive search and separate consideration of the prior art.

c. Claims 9-13 recite a plurality of patentably distinct removable devices further comprised within the claimed artificial graft system of claim 1. Each class of removal device is directed to a product that is functionally distinct and capable of separate use in comparison to the other members of the claimed genus recited in the claim. For example, the laser included in this group has a distinct function in comparison to the needle, balloon, and ice also included in the same group.

2. Because these species are structurally distinct for the reasons given above, and because a search of one species does not necessarily overlap with that of another species, it would be unduly burdensome for the examiner to search and examine all of the subject matter being sought in the presently pending claims, and thus, restriction of the claimed species for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

3. Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, 1-6, and 14-16 are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

4. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103 (a) of the other invention.
